Opera Software announced the end of support for the widget on April 24, 2012 in favor of an additional called connection. Many developers, including those who build widgets, convert them into connections. While there are more widgets that provide more functionality than the connections available in July 2012, eventually they will no longer work because the company released a new version of Opera. This version of this latest bug fixes and improvements. The only reason this app doesn't have five stars, is because old reviews talk about different apps completely. Sorry to rest the title but it won't let me post it with a long title. Opera may be lower in the past, but now it's the perfect app for anyone who can navigate the internet uninterrupted every five seconds, because that's another problem entirely. Opera has a feed feature that can send webpages or text to this chat that's between you and the computer you can attach to your account, but the computer isn't required. Computer only if you sign in to your account on Opera on your computer and link the device. Opera also protects your devices such as google, but can block ads and windows by default. It can also remember your check-in, it has cryptocurrency mining protection settings, it can also save accounts of your payment methods such as online wallets, so its cost-effective shopping sites can't save them and you don't have to re-enter them all the time. There is also a personal mode, which makes it non-logged in or browsing history saved, which most browsers do the second part but skip the first one. To rely on, Opera makes you browse the internet efficiently and protected as long as you tell it (just turn on the settings once and they will remain). Oh, and another thing... you can delete your device's cookies save from the site with it as well. At first I left the app a star because that's how much I hate. But I also love this browser. I like the instant Google search feature. But this surfer man is behind in so many ways for me. The historical delete button requires more power. I hate deleting history individually. Bookmarks can use more work. Also purple I can not handle purple in this browser. It's like me on a porn website or something. I would like it to be able to have a more iPhonesque color interface. Purple people, it's too much of an egg-eggrigation. I'm sorry it's too much. It's all over. I can barely see the logo. The logo can use a little rework, making it stronger looking, like it's very reliable. Not a thin frail O now. But this browser is. Needing more work like I'm just sad. I'll use this all my life if it has a design of tweaks, so the choice of user interface in terms of color, history deletes power buttons, more tweaks and filtration. Currently I stick to brave browsers that I don't like like this browser but I'll use it instead of this. Get it together It could be better if this app has a historical delete button in the delete section. I have to swipe to delete that can be exhausting as well as I have to use some to reach the clear historical button. A nice round button somewhere at the bottom of the pages of history would obviously be perfect. I love this browser. I tried to find the best option for my mind and how it works. I have used safari but have very disappointed with his performance after a few hours of use. I like firefox almost the same as an opera product. I find the opera's touch to be more friendly, faster, and it keeps getting better. The UI is simple yet powerful. My personal UX is overhwhelome. I used the Mac OS version and encouraged to use it as an additional browser initially then post a review or contact opera support with any suggestions and hopefully find a hidden gem of various in your browsing experience. For those who were not familiar with my previous use of acronym. A UI is a user interface and UX is lingo smaryppants for the user experience. As for my rating ... i see a lot of apps rated 5 stars. This application is under promises and delivery. In the United States, I am fortunate to have opinions and authorities a voiced and proud question authority. Share your thoughts embarrassed by pride and kindness. That was the choice I chose. Everyone makes a choice. I'll read other reviews and probably agree with some things that need improvement. For now. 7 stars with some planetary solar systems that support equal life. Developer Website App Support Privacy Policy
